Dischromatics Ltd Environmental Policy

Dischromatics duplicates CDs and DVDs and thermally or inkjet prints or labels them on site and also acts as a broker for replicated disc production undertaken by Sony DADC. It also has a Digital Print & Finishing department on-site.

Dischromatics acknowledges its responsibility as a business to protect the environment through conformance to all applicable laws (including RoHS compliancy laws), the prevention of pollution and the elimination of chemicals and hazardous substances during the production process.

To prove its commitment to environmental issues, Dischromatics endeavours to minimise the amount of energy, resources and raw materials used in the production process and to minimise the amount of waste produced as well as recycling as much waste as possible. Dischromatics also undertakes to monitor its impact upon the environment and to continually improve its systems through annual reviews.

As a consequence of this, Dischromatics encourages suppliers to adopt an ISO14001 compliant system and requires them to guarantee that their products do not contain any substances banned by law.

Dischromatics itself also takes great care to ensure that no banned chemicals are present in the production area to eliminate the possibility that they could find their way unintentionally into the production process.

All employees and people working on behalf of Dischromatics are also made aware of the importance Dischromatics places upon environmental issues described within this policy.
